

Use of cleaning agents

Before cleaning seats, any loose dirt should always be removed from the seats and the seats should be vacuumed.

Fabric upholstery

Seats with fabric upholstery must be regularly brushed off and vacuumed.

Dirt and stains should be removed immediately whenever possible. Dry dirt, e.g. dust, ash and similar, should be removed with a vacuum cleaner and brush.

It is best to clean fabric upholstery using a microfiber cloth soaked in a mild solution of water/dishwashing detergent. The upholstery should be rubbed gently and not too vigorously. The fabric cover may otherwise be damaged. It is important to treat complete sections of the covers, e.g. an entire seat cushion side or the entire cushion surface, otherwise visible edges will be left behind. The seat should then be left to dry for 24 hours.

Alternatively, textile upholstery cleaner can also be used to clean fabric upholstery. In this case, it is particularly important to clean entire areas otherwise visible edges will be left behind. After cleaning, the foam must be removed with clean water.

The cleaning results depend on the nature and age of the soiling.

Imitation leather and Alcantara

A mild solution of water/dishwashing detergent is recommended for cleaning imitation leather and Alcantara. Never use aggressive cleaning agents such as bathroom or kitchen cleaning products. A cotton or microfiber cloth should be moistened with the mild solution of water/dishwashing detergent. The imitation leather or Alcantara cover can then be cleaned with this cloth.

Leather upholstery

Leather upholstery must be regularly cleaned and maintained by wiping it with a damp cloth and then drying.

To remove any residual soiling, apply Mercedes-Benz leather care foam to the entire seat and then work it in gently after it has dried.

Leather can become electrostatically charged. To prevent this, it is necessary to treat it regularly with Mercedes-Benz leather care foam.

Perforated leather must not get wet on the reverse side otherwise the color may rub off; therefore clean carefully and in particular dry well.

Through contact with fur seat covers or items of clothing that may release dyes (e.g. suede) the leather upholstery may discolor. These stains cannot be removed. With fur seat covers, place a layer of fabric in-between to prevent contact stains on the leather upholstery.

i Note on fabric upholstery

It is not always possible to remove stains from fabric upholstery without visible edges forming. In such cases, the individual seat fluting, the entire part or the entire area must be cleaned uniformly. Several cleaning steps may be necessary.