Refinish German alloy wheels with Wurth.

People who are lucky enough to own German-built cars love them. The only complaint about them is the remarkable amount of dust produced by the brake pads. These pads contain graphite, which flakes when exposed to friction, more so than other brake pads. Persistent brake dust can create minute scratches on the wheel surface which dulls the finish over time. Wurth Silver Wheel Spray Paint allows you to touch up or refinish the wheels with a perfectly matched shade of silver. No one will know but you!

Wurth Silver Wheel Paint is formulated to perfectly match the shade of silver used by German auto manufacturers. Made in Germany, this touch-up paint is sold throughout Europe to manage the damage caused by the excessive brake dust produced by German cars. Now this product has found its way to the U.S. to touch up German imports. If you have a German vehicle, Wurth Silver Wheel Paint should be in your garage. It's perfect for small scrapes or all-over repainting.

Wurth comes in a fine aerosol formula that coats evenly without globs or spatter. To apply to the whole wheel, it may be helpful to remove the wheel from your vehicle. Or just tape off the surrounding tire. After all, this is paint. Thoroughly clean and degrease the wheel with Wurth Clean-Solve, or another quality degreaser. Dry the wheel completely. Spray lightly across the wheel back and forth, until it is covered. Do not apply a heavy coat and do not hold the can still. After 30 minutes, apply another light coat. Follow with Wurth High Gloss Lacquer Spray.

For spot touch-ups, clean and degrease the wheel. Lightly sand the scuff and wipe away any dust. Spray the scuff with several light coats, allowing 30 minutes of drying between coats. Pass the can over the scuff; do not spray the scuff directly. If you apply too much at once, the paint will run. Follow with Wurth High Gloss Lacquer Spray over the whole wheel for uniform shine.

Refinish German wheels with Wurth Silver Wheel Spray Paint, formulated specifically for German alloy wheels.

To protect your wheels from the ravages of brake dust, apply a coat of DP Wheel Glaze. It seals and protects your wheels much like wax protects your paint.
